Are you looking for attractive and rigorous activities for your algebra 1 students? Look no further! This activity is designed to involve students while practicing the notation of evaluation functions. You can complete this activity on a station or as a homework practice. The activity comes with a print and digital version so you can choose what works well in your classroom. This activity is easy to check and is perfect for seasons or independent practice. The activity allows students to graph inequalities and identify points on the graph that are included in sets of solutions. Students will love to help Homer eat donuts while plotting the inequalities. Students will also complete some questions to solve problems and identify correct graphs. This activity has a television cartoon theme of the 90s to roll up students without looking like textbook problems. This activity follows the A.3.D1 Texas algebra standards. This activity can be found in a PACKAGE containing all of my Graphics, Key Characteristics Identification and Change Effects activities.
